Introduction. In the winter of 1290, Kalonymos ben Judah of Esslingen (near Stuttgart in North Württemberg) completed his only recorded professional accomplishment, the writing and decorating of a so-called ‘winter Mahzor’ for Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur and Sukkot. The second half of this Esslingen Mahzor has long been well known in the scholarly world.

The machzor is the prayer book used by Jews on the High Holy Days of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. Many Jews also make use of specialized machzorim on the three pilgrimage festivals of Passover, Shavuot, and Sukkot. The machzor is a specialized form of the siddur, which is generally intended for use in weekday and Shabbat services. The word machzor means "cycle"; the root מָדַח means "to return". The term machzor originally referred to a book containing prayers for the entire year ...
