Like other Japanese car makers post WW2, Nissan decided to take a Willys Jeep, reverse engineer it and come up with its own take on an off-road 4X4. The 4W series of vehicles from 1951 was the result of that process and, by 1958, Nissan had progressed with the concept to the point of adding Patrol badges to their rugged little puddle-jumper.

Basically the Nissan Patrol is the last word when it comes to hardcore 4x4s. While other brands offer better all around packages, the Patrol is by far the best when it comes to tearing up the rough stuff. It's big, comfortable and spacious, but excels at what it does. If you're going into the wild, there's no better car to get you there.

The Nissan Patrol is a large, rugged and in some ways archaic 4X4, which is at odds with the soft natured appeal of most modern SUVs. The five door model features up to seven seats, while there's plenty of cabin space to accommodate pets and prams; all made with quality materials to ensure that it doesn't get worn down by fidgeting children.
